THE NAME GAME

“The Name Game.”

It’s been a hit record by Shirley Ellis.

There probably has been a television quiz show with that title.

Milton Bradley and Parker Brothers have it on their drawing boards.

And it’s also one of the favorite pastimes in baseball.

Every player who has worn a major league uniform has been compared to another somewhere along the line. It often starts with scouting reports: “has the build of a Mantle . . . throws better than Clemente . . . quick wrists like Aaron.”

Well, those comparisons are indeed rare but you get the idea.

Which brings us to Jerry Remy.

Because the Somerset, Massachusetts native prefers to let his actions speak for him, we turn to qualified observers for commentary on Remy. And, quite naturally, they play “The Name Game.”

“He reminds me a lot of PETE ROSE in that he’s hustling all the time,” said coach Jimmie Reese, a former second baseman with 50 years experience in professional baseball. “He’s very dedicated and loves to play the game. He’s the first one at the park.”

“Defensively, he reminds me a lot of a combination of DICK GREEN and BILLY GARDNER by his actions,” said manager Dick Williams. “He has outstanding hands and is just one helluva player.”

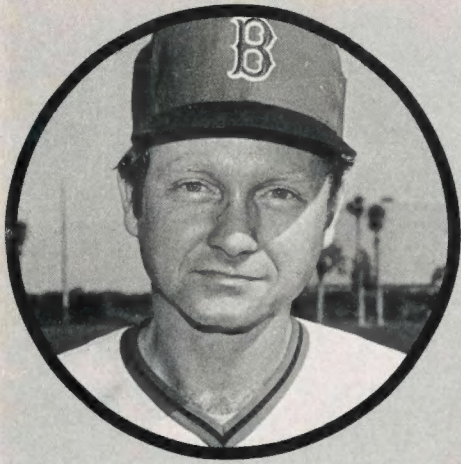

“He reminds me of the late Hall of Famer FRANKIE FRISCH,” said coach Grover Resinger, who personally does most of the tutoring for Remy. “He’s a throwback to the old fashioned player. He’s like Frisch because of his speed afoot, short hitting stroke, pivot at second base, ability to cover a lot of ground and a hard-nosed approach to the game.”

“He reminds me of NELLIE FOX,” said Cookie Rojas, an expert of high degree in the art of playing second base. “He doesn’t try to pull the ball but hits it up the middle. He and Fox are about the same size.”

“He’s a lot like DENNY DOYLE, only he runs better and he’s younger,” said Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog, formerly Remy’s coach with the Angels. “Eventually he’ll become a .300 hitter. He does everything pretty well on the field . . . good range, makes the double play and has good hands. I think he has the ability to be the All-Star second baseman.”

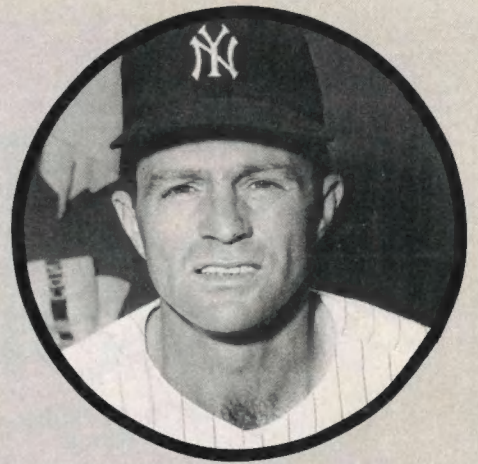

If Jerry can continue to improve and live up to all this praise, we soon will be hearing: “He reminds me of JERRY REMY . . .”

This Doctor Makes Clubhouse Calls

Making out the lineup card is manager Dick Williams' job. Making sure everyone is available to be in that lineup is Dr. Jules Rasinski's task.

Dr. Rasinski is the Angels' team physician and the man responsible for getting and keeping players healthy. His duties performed in close conjunction with trainer Freddie Frederico, go far beyond the obvious problem of avoiding, treating and healing injuries. He's virtually the family physician for a brood of 25.

"Our work begins in spring with complete physicals for everyone," said the good doctor, who also maintains a general practice in Orange. "We include a chest X-ray, blood tests, electrocardiogram and X-ray of all joints of pitchers.

"We also conduct a health seminar for the players — talking about what they can do to keep their bodies healthy. We include player participation to teach them emergency techniques. By the time I get down to the clubhouse they might save a teammate's life."

Dr. Rasinski attends virtually every home game and visits the clubhouse to keep tabs on everyone. Checking the spread of germs among a 30-man contingent which works and travels in such close quarters is of utmost importance. He also attends to visiting

"It's really great fun working with Freddie and these athletes," said the doctor, whose athletic career was confined to high school due to a knee injury suffered at the University of Buffalo. TOMMY DAVIS AND THE GOLDEN RULE

The Golden Rule is presented to every child as a lesson in behavior.

For Tommy Davis, there came a second Golden Rule at age 34 and it proved a savior.

American League President Joe Cronin called it the "Designated Hitter Rule" and invoked it in 1973 for the most consequential rule change in major league baseball in half a century. Tommy Davis called it a godsend.

A brilliant career which already had spanned 13 major league seasons despite a crippling ankle injury was thus extended. Davis became the most prolific "DH" in the rule's brief history.

In 1973 he posted the best average among designated hitters with a .293 mark. The following year he dipped slightly to .289 for fourth best but then reclaimed honors in 1975 with a .283 performance. However, the Orioles released him and so did the Yankees this spring. It appeared his career was over, DH rule or not.

"I made some phone calls but received no offers so I thought it all was behind me," said Tommy, now 37. "I just wasn't thinking about baseball any more. I was just getting used to a new life. I even took my kids fishing for the first time."

Davis hadn't completely forsaken the diamond. He was managing a softball team for his employer, Casa Blanca Records. But he chose not to be a playing manager and hadn't handled a bat since spring training with the Yankees.

Enter Harry Dalton. Exit Tommy Davis, record company executive.

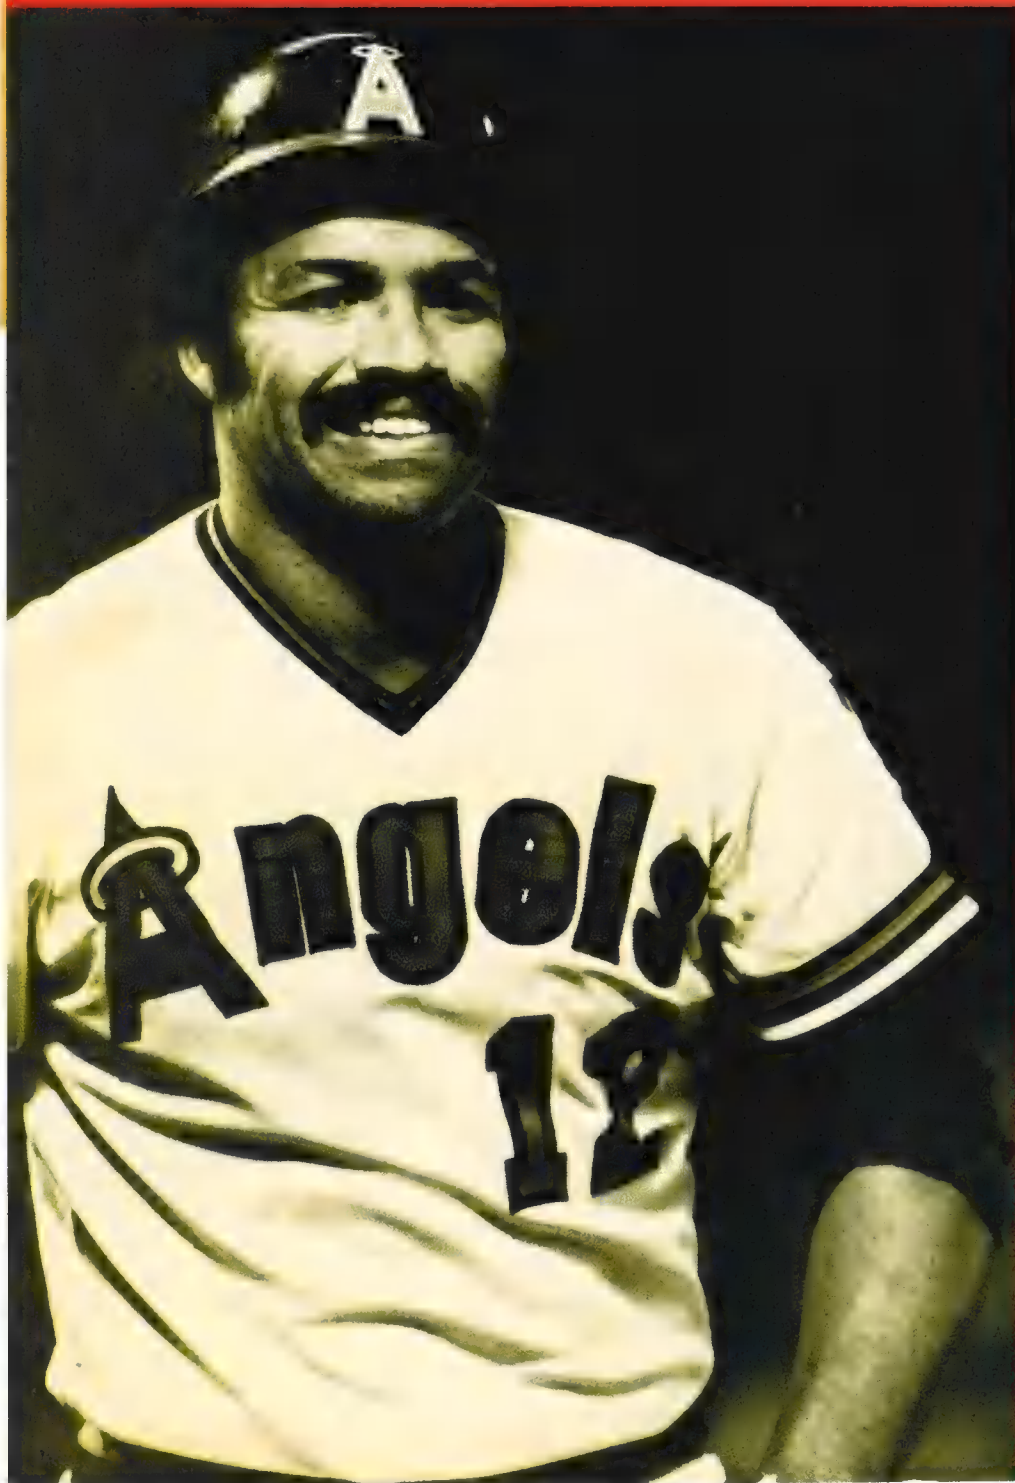

The Angels invited the two-time National League batting champion to take batting practice at Anaheim Stadium and before you could say "look at all those line drives" he was offered a contract. Three days later he was on the active roster.

"As soon as I hit the park and put on that uniform, I got that old feeling," said Tommy.

Davis' contribution to the Angels' season came quicker than any one could dream. He signed his contract in Bloomington, Minnesota and hours later delivered a game-winning pinch-hit single against the Twins.

"It was scary," he admitted. "I wasn't really ready to look at curves on the black (edge of home plate) and screwballs."

But Davis went on to strike many more quick blows for shortened spring training sessions. He hit safely in his first six games as an Angel and, most importantly, drove in six runs.

"He can hit at midnight with the lights out," said manager Dick Williams, who had used Tommy's talents in Oakland in 1971 on the way to a divisional title.

"I've been released four times but I've always come back," said Tommy, who bounced back from a serious ankle fracture suffered in 1965 with the Los Angeles Dodgers. Subsequent stops at New York (Mets), Chicago (White Sox), Seattle (Mariners), Houston, Oakland, Houston again, Chicago again (Cubs), Oakland again and Chicago (Cubs) again preceded his lengthy residence at Baltimore under the auspices of the DH rule.

"Hitting always has been my life," said the "King of the DH's." "I think I can help this team swinging four times a day."

QUALITY.

Quality in a small car. What does this mean to you? To Toyota it means an automobile that's inexpensive, not cheap. The new generation of Toyota Corollas are built with quality. The proof? 9 out of 10 Toyota cars sold in this country since 1958 are still on the road today. Quality. You asked for it. You got it. Toyota.

Quality is durability and how ■ car handles the road. Power assisted front disc brakes help you maintain control. MacPherson strut front suspension helps keep the ride smooth and unit body welded construction helps keep the Corolla tight and virtually rattle free.

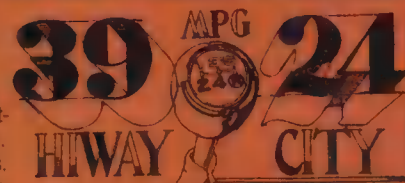

Toyota's quality ■ in a line, not one car. No matter what your space needs you'll find it in one of ten Corollas: the Hardtop, 2-Door Sedan, 2- or 4-Door Deluxe Sedan, 5-Door Wagon, the new Sport Coupe or the new Liftback™ with a split, fold down rear seat. And there's ■ sporty equipped SR-5 model of the Hardtop, Sport Coupe and Liftback.

A quality car ■ be economical. The Toyota Corolla gets great gas mileage. Note: 1976 EPA tests, with 5-speed overdrive transmission, 39 mpg on highway, 24 city. These EPA results are estimates.

The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment. California EPA ratings will differ. An automatic transmission is available on Deluxe models.

Quality. You asked for it. You got it at nearly 1,000 authorized dealers across the U.S. These same dealers comprise ■ network of service departments with Toyota trained mechanics. The new generation of Toyota Corollas. If you can find a better built small car than a Toyota... buy it.

YOU ASKED FOR IT.

YOU GOT IT.

Special Group Programs

Community Dates . . . Chambers of Commerce from City of Commerce to San Juan Capistrano staged their 'special' date at Anaheim Stadium last year. In addition to the fun and excitement of rallying your community together, each community is invited to have its dignitaries participate in 'first-ball' tossing ceremonies; have a Little League team present a brief infield drill right on the Big-A infield; have the school band perform and watch the Big-A message board as it spells out bicentennial highlights from your own community. Community date tickets are available on a consignment basis.

Extra-Inning Club & Grand-Slam Room. Two private dining rooms with adjacent seating now are being offered to groups of 35-or-more. The locations are ideal for business meetings, entertaining customers or strictly for socializing. Guests in the EIC & GSR receive a box seat on the terrace level; a delicious buffet with chili, all the beer and soft drinks and coffee you want; a free VIP bus parking pass; a complimentary Angels scorebook magazine; special recognition on the Big-A message board; and US free tickets for the game if game goes extra innings or a grand-slam home run is hit . . . Cost is $10 per person.

Picnic Under Big-A . . . A new program being offered this year for groups of 100-or-more. Here's the perfect answer for your annual employees' outing. An outdoor picnic area, complete with all the frills, will be located directly under the Big-A. Two great plans are available. Plan Anaheim allows you to bring your own food—sorry, no drinks allowed. A concession stand by the picnic area will be open for beer, soft drinks and coffee. You receive a box seat on the terrace level; an Angels scorebook magazine; free parking by the picnic area; special recognition on the Big-A message board and, in the event you reserve a weekend date (Saturday or Sunday), you'll be entertained by the Angels Dixieland Band. Plan Anaheim costs only $5.50 per person. A nonrefundable $25 deposit is required and final payment must be made 10 days prior to the date of the game. Plan Orange County offers you a choice from two box lunches, including an entree, salad, roll, plus one free beer and/or soft drink. The remainder of Plan Orange County is exactly the same as Plan Anaheim. Price: $8.50 per person.

Birthday Party Club . . . Introduced last year, this program proved one of the most popular in Angels history. The Birthday Party club is available to youngsters 14 and under. Minimum order must be for a party of six—or—more, including at least one adult (two adults for 6-10 youngsters, etc.). The Angels provide invitations; birthday cake; a gift for the celebrator; celebrator's name in lights on the Big-A message board; an Angels souvenir for each member in the party; a club level box seat (a $4.00 value by itself). Price: $5 per person. Final payment for all orders must be received seven days prior to date of game selected.

Group Discount Dates . . . Plan early and take advantage of a $1 savings on the purchase of box seats or a 50c savings on the purchase of reserved seats for every member of a group of 20-or-more on the following WEDNESDAY dates: July 28 (Kansas City); August 11 (Boston) and September 1 (Detroit).

Note: No refunds or returns available on group discount dates.

OLDTIMERS GAME Saturday Aug. 14, 6:15 p.m.

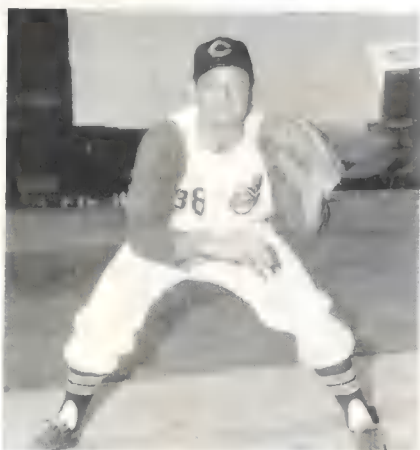

Joe DiMaggio

Denny McLain

Bobby Richardson

Early Wynn

Harvey Kuenn

Jackie Jensen

Enos Slaughter

Bill Skowron

The waistlines may have expanded, the stories may have become a bit exaggerated, but the names and faces belong to the same well-known characters who have entertained Angels' fans since the inception of the team in 1961.

There's Cy Young Winner Dean Chance, lil' Albie Pearson, big Steve Bilko, slugger Ted Kluszewski, colorful Jimmy Piersall and Bo Belinsky, plow-boy Tom Morgan, Leon (Daddy Wags) Wagner plus the greatest Angel of them all, Arnold (Jigger) Statz to mention a few.

They will be battling a star-studded lineup of American League veterans in a nostalgic "Oldtimers Game." Jimmie Reese will manage the Angels and Al Lopez will direct the A.L. stars who will be captained by Joe DiMaggio, the "Yankee Clipper."

Game time is 6:15 p.m. prior to the Angels-Milwaukee Brewers game at 7:30 p.m.

Lopez' squad features Hall of Famer Early Wynn, 30-game winner Denny McLain, catcher-comedian Bob Uecker, Moose Skowron, all-America and former A.L. MVP Jackie Jensen, batting champ Harvey Kuenn and Enos (Country) Slaughter.

TR7. IT'S OUT TO STEAL THE AMERICAN ROAD

ENGINE: 4 cylinder, over-head cam, electronic ignition.
STEERING: Rack and pinion, flace-type 13" steering wheel.
BRAKES: Power assisted, front disc.
PRICE: $5,759 manufacturer's suggested retail price P.D.E. Inland transportation, local taxes and preparation charges extra.
OPTIONS: Air conditioning, AM, AM/FM, or AM/FM stereo cassette.

First consider what you see: a bold, slashing wedge taken from the Grand Prix racetracks of the world; the dashing shape of things to come.

Now consider what you don't see: the edge of the wedge knifes through the wind, forcing the front down for solid control. The slippery silhouette cuts drag. Enhances power. Adds miles to the gallon (29.9 mpg on the road; 20.7 in city streets according to official U.S. Government tests).

Consider sensation: a swift, nimble, taut two-seater that holds the road as if it had hands, that zooms from zero to sixty in an average 10.5 seconds.

Consider comfort: shut your eyes and you're riding a luxury sedan (sports cars were never like this). You enter the cockpit without acrobatics, sit and stretch in voluptuous space.

Consider the overriding sense of it: unlike the new breed of complex, fragile sports cars, TR7 emerges a beautifully simple and simply beautiful machine; a triumph of dependability priced at only $5,759. It's a steal.

RON JACKSON

Solid Rookie Coming of Age

Over the course of a 162-game schedule, individual fans and plays blur in the myriad of at bats and pitches, strikeouts and base hits and clutch hitting.

Ron Jackson, however, vividly recalls one particular experience late in May. It proved a pivotal point in his still young major league career.

The scene was Anaheim Stadium. The date was May 27, the first of a two-night doubleheader. The Angels were trailing the Kansas City Royals, 3-0, in the ninth inning.

Hobby Bonds gained first base on a fierce broken bat single but still was there with two out. Relief pitcher Mark Latal worked carefully to the tying run, Bill Molton. Too carefully, he walked him. That brought Jackson to the plate.

The muscular third baseman was 0-for-1 that afternoon and the fans were screaming not specifically to satisfy the 23-year-old rookie, who was trying to win a regular spot in the lineup. "Make contact" was all he was thinking when he sent a long drive to right-center field.

Royals' rightfielder Al Cowens broke ineffectively to his right and back for the ball. He was plunked across the lush turf and he stalled to make the reception. Suddenly, his feet slipped. He staggered as he lunged for the ball and finally tumbled to the ground as the ball sailed cleanly toward the fence.

No one ever will know for certain if Cowens could have made the catch had he retained his footing. What is recorded is a two-run triple for Jackson, who promptly brought home the winning run on Andy Fabeherren's single.

The Angels went on to sweep the doubleheader and find themselves a third baseman.

"I think I turned the corner with that hit," said Jackson, who went on to collect two more hits in the night cap. "It all turned around then."

"It gave me a feeling of belonging, for sure. That Wilton had stayed with me and told me it was my job, that I should relax. That hit made it easier to relax."

It that late May day was the turning point, reinforcement of those feelings came two weeks later in Detroit. Jackson capped an impressive road trip with a four-hit performance including a double and a two-run home run.

"What a feeling that was," he recalled. "The best feeling I can remember. At the time, that triple was the biggest thrill of my career. Then it was my first home run, at Boston. Then this day in Detroit."

The Angels have been expecting such rewards from Jackson since they signed him in 1971 away from major college football stadiums.

"I had offers from all the big schools, all the major powers," said the Birmingham, Alabama native with plenty uncollected pride. "The Big 10 and Big Eight schools, Michigan etc. I was a ballhawk because I was fast and strong and could run over people."

But I chose baseball. I had been playing it much longer, ever since I was a little kid, I'm glad I did."

Ron has been a pillar in the Angels farm system wherever he played. Throughout his minor league career he was compared to Oakland's Sal Bando, both for his build and power and ability to produce in the clutch. His best year statistically came at El Paso in 1974 when he batted .328 with 11 home runs and 74 runs batted in. Last year he gained a berth on the Pacific Coast League All-Star team and compiled a .291 batting average with nine home runs and 85 RBI.

An award he received at El Paso may be more meaningful, however. It's called the "Gene Lawing Memorial Award" and goes to the player who does the most off the field in terms of helping young stars develop as players and persons. There he contributed to turning points which never will be forgotten.

PAUL HARTZELL

Refreshing Relief

Paul Hartzell is your atypical major league ballplayer.

For openers, his proving ground was the campus of Lehigh University – outstanding in academic circles but hardly a University of Southern California or Arizona State when it comes to producing baseball players.

He reads Newsweek or Time – not Sports Illustrated or Field & Stream to idle away the hours in hotel lobbies and airport terminals.

No flashy convertible or sports car to wheel him to the stadium – just a well-worn pair of jogging shoes.

During an off day in New York he took in the theatre – Broadway version, not the Fox or Bijou.

“Refreshing” is the word manager Dick Williams uses to describe his 22-year-old righthander and Mr. Webster has yet to come up with a more appropriate adjective. Hartzell has a perspective on the game and life in general far in advance of his years.

“Every kid in Little League wants to play in the major leagues and I was no exception,” said Paul, when asked why he would forsake lucrative employment offers as a holder of a Bachelors Degree in Mechanical Engineering. “My parents were concerned with my well-being. They thought it was going to be tough on me monetarily. They knew I had worked hard for my degree and thought it would be nice to have a nice job. But they were totally behind me when I did make the decision to play baseball.”

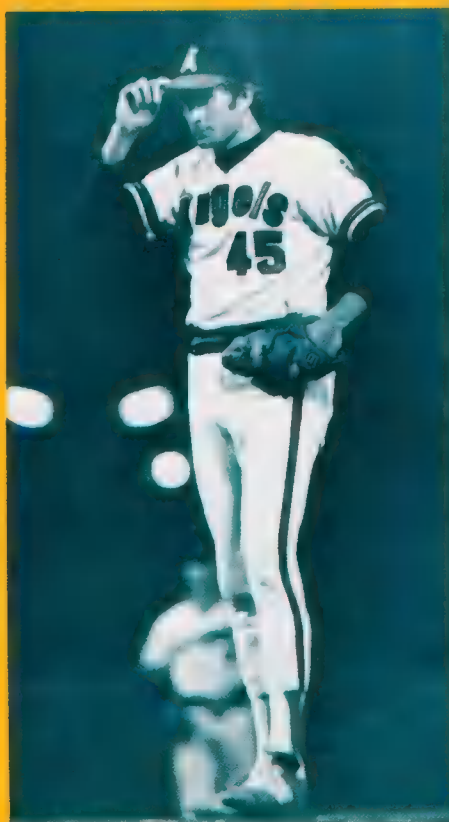

A large bonus offer did not figure in the debate. As a 10th round selection in the free agent draft, Paul pondered opportunity instead of dollars. With a collegiate record of 11-14, he had little bargaining power. It took a 30-2 record for the amateur Leone team in Baltimore coached by Angels’ scout Walter Youse to even attract attention.

“Walter was high on him and so was I after what he showed at Quad Cities after we signed him,” said general manager Harry Dalton.

Performances in Colorado and the Arizona Instructional League also were impressive and Hartzell won an invitation to spring training with the Angels.

“Nobody ever came up to me and said, ‘Hey, you can’t make this team,’ ” Paul relates. “So I never thought I wouldn’t. I never thought about how many pitchers were in spring training. The one advantage I had was that I came to camp in shape and was ready to go from the first day.”

Conditioning and concentration are two of Paul’s more valuable tools, along with a sinking fastball. Jogging or jump rope are daily habits and nothing perturbs him on the mound. One of his “models” is Bob Gibson, the former Cardinals’ star.

“He was so competitive. I still can remember him against Denny McLain in a World Series game. The rain was coming down and it was about 45 degrees. His breath was coming out in little clouds. With all these things around him, his concentration was so total. He didn’t care if Noah’s Ark came over the left-field wall. He was going to do his job.”

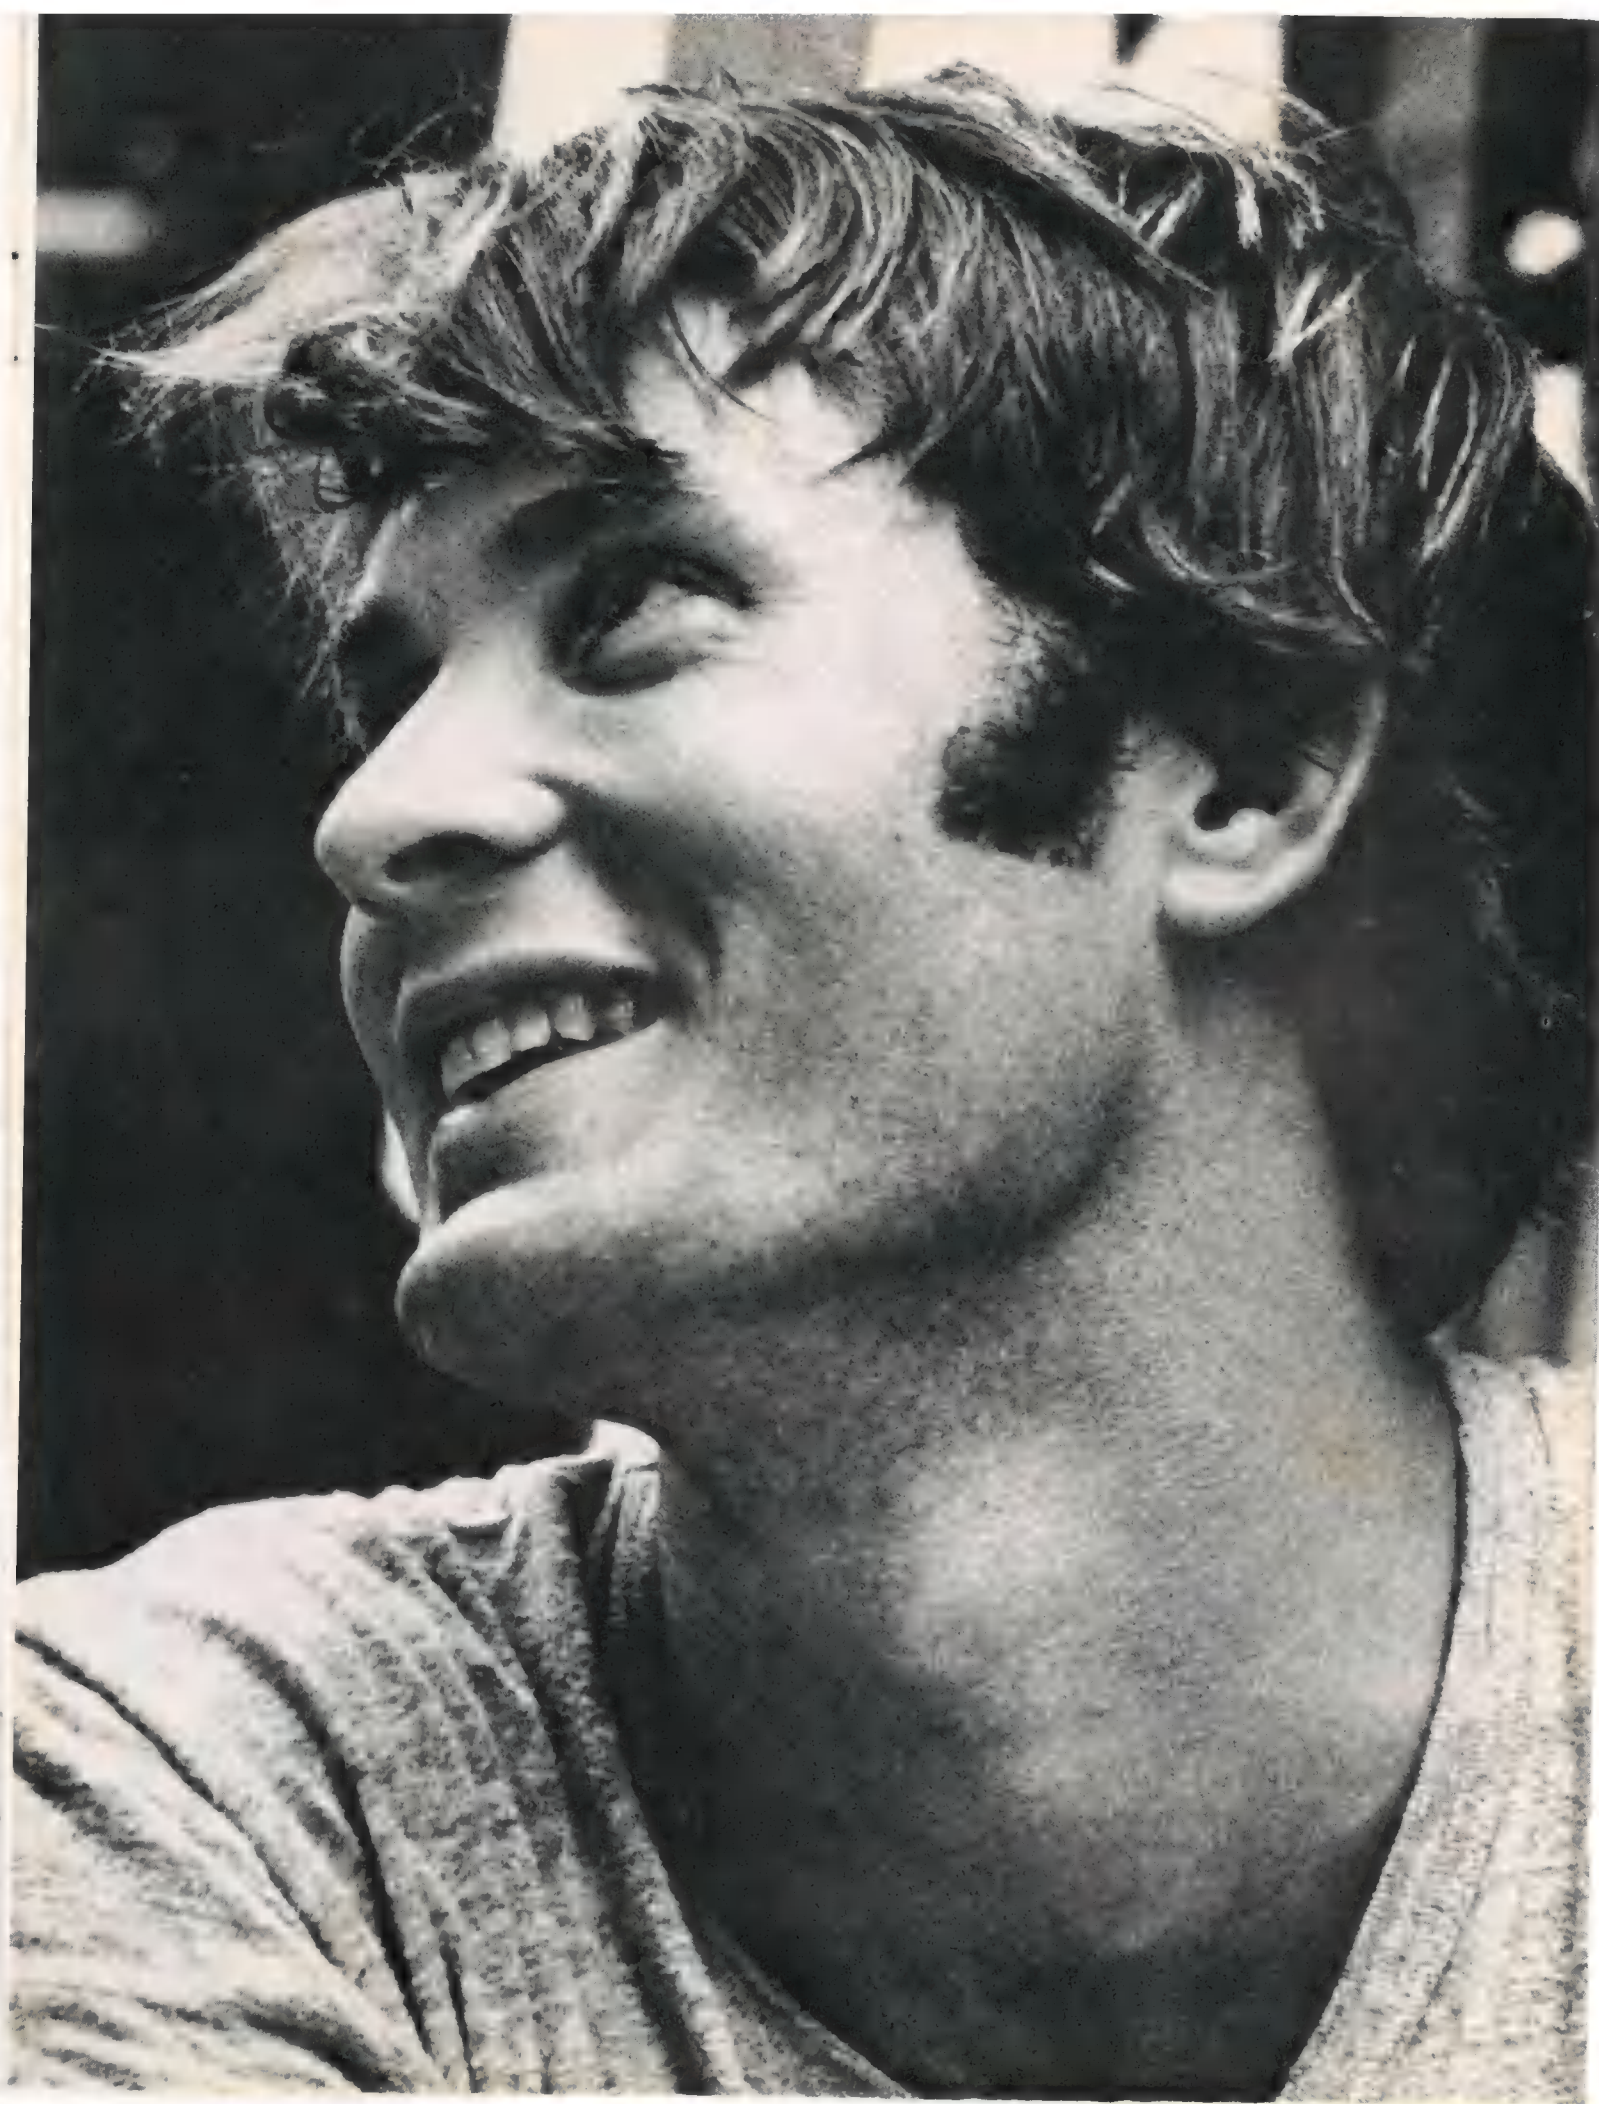

The only other player Lehigh has sent to the majors in recent seasons was pitcher Craig Anderson, one of the original New York Mets. Anderson now works in the Lehigh athletic department and can claim Hartzell as a prized pupil.

“Think, fight, hustle,” said Paul, reciting from a recent letter from Anderson. “He put those things to me in a big league context. A lot of people on their way here don’t realize you have to take a professional attitude toward working on the things you need. I got that from him.”

Paul already has developed the ability to leave the game at the ballpark.

“After I got my first save I was asked at dinner why I didn’t look happier. I said I have a great time out there, I really enjoy being there, and I enjoy talking to my teammates. But after I take my shower, that’s it.

“I felt the same way after my first performance against Oakland when I didn’t get anyone out. When it’s over, it’s over and you go on to the next one.”

THE BULLPEN

Dear Editor:

What makes a run earned or unearned?

Dale Eby
Fullerton

■ A run becomes unearned, if, in the judgment of the official scorer, the run would not have scored were it not for an error or passed ball in the inning. Some cases are obvious. Any man who reaches base on an error scores an unearned run because he should not have been on base. Or, if an error prolongs an inning, subsequent runs are not earned. Where the decisions get sticky are determining how many bases a runner would have advanced under different circumstances, that is, from another base or with a different amount of outs, all changed by an error or passed ball. A wild pitch does not figure in an unearned run since it was the pitcher's mistake. However, a throwing error by the pitcher can make a run unearned.

Dear Editor:

Who drives the car which brings the relief pitchers in from the bullpen?

James Irwin Jr.
Garden Grove

■ Ray Reyes, a member of the grounds crew, fills in as chauffeur.

Dear Editor:

I was impressed with the Angels participation in their "Student Achievers" program. How did this come about?

Helen Neiman
Buena Park

■ The instigator was club president Arthur E. "Red" Patterson. With cooperation from The Register and the Orange County Board of Education, he put the package together. It was up to the individual schools to present a list of qualified students but, unfortunately, not all principals cooperated to the fullest extent. The Angels are looking forward to an even larger program in 1977.

Dear Editor:

How is the Big-A scoreboard operated?

David Taniguchi
Selma

■ The scoreboard control room, like Shay Torrent's music room, is enclosed in glass in the press box. One operator, Joe Halbert, controls the upper portion of the scoreboard which includes balls and strikes, outs, the batter, the linescore and batting averages. Mel Franks operates the message board portion with a combination of direct typing, paper computer tapes and magnetic tapes. It is the latter which produces the "Charging Horse" and other animations. Ed Munson also is in the room to keep tabs on scores of other games and prepare last-minute messages.

Dear Editor:

What is "meal money," which I heard mentioned on a broadcast?

Darren Hoyt
Alhambra

■ Players receive a daily stipend to pay for their meals when the team is on a road trip. They currently receive $23 per day, which doesn't go too far in some of the New York hotels.

Dear Editor:

What are the traveling secretary's duties?

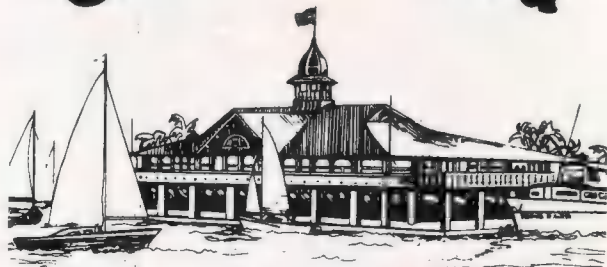

Bud Wieland
Downey

■ The traveling secretary arranges all transportation used by the team for both players and equipment; makes all hotel reservations; dispenses meal money; and, for some teams, keeps statistics for all road games. If you've done much traveling, you know that everything doesn't always go as planned. Multiply your problems by a traveling party of approximately 40 which must meet a tight schedule and you can imagine some of the headaches which crop up for the traveling secretary.

Do you have questions or comments for the editor? If so, we would like to hear from you.

If we print your letter, you will receive two free tickets to an Angels game. Please keep questions brief. Address them to: Scorebook Editor, Angels, P.O. Box 2000, Anaheim, CA 92803. Be sure to include your address. Winners will be notified prior to publication.

More About . . .

The Los Angeles Rams drew Rasinski into the professional sports world when they trained at Chapman College in 1962.

"When the Angels moved to Anaheim in 1966, I was recommended to their front office and had an interview and assumed this post. I later became team physician for the Southern California Sun."

During more than a decade of sports medicine, Rasinski has seen considerable changes.

"The athletes have changed the most. They are more aware of bodily functions and understand their physical problems. They're able to help much more with determining injuries and how to prevent them. It's all a part of better health education."

Some things haven't changed.

"My pet peeve is the player who reports to spring training out of shape. It should be a time to sharpen skills, not to get into shape. If a player has a blister problem it's because he didn't do any running during the winter."

Rasinski, who has the final word on whether a player is fit to play or not, relies on several specialists to solve major problems.

"We're very fortunate to have such qualified specialists in our area who I can rely on for consultation."

The doctor also heaps praise on Frederico, the senior trainer in the American League and the man who carries out Rasinski's prescriptions and directions.

"Freddie is a joy," said the doctor. "He's so outstanding and knows the players so well he makes the job so much easier. His rapport with athletes is excellent and that can be very important. He's the one who really does all the work."
